1 45485/DMC/I275

WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. An address contact system to maintain a plurality of address contact information, the system comprising:

a plurality of address clients configured to respectively create a respective one of a plurality of address contact information:

an address server coupled to the plurality of address clients and storing the plurality of address contact information; and wherein the plurality of address clients are configured to update the respective one of the plurality of address contact information and view the plurality of address contact information.

2. A method of maintaining a plurality of address contact information using an address contact system that includes a plurality of address clients and an address server, the method comprising:

creating one of a plurality of address contact information associated with one of a plurality of address clients; storing the plurality of address contact information including the one of the plurality of address contact information; updating the one of the plurality of address contact information by the one of the plurality of address clients; and viewing the plurality of address contact information by the plurality of address clients.

25

30